Cunningham Elected SG President

BILL ROSSON

BILLY CUNNINGHAM

STEVE BECKER

NELDA KENNEDY

Steve Becker, a Liberal Arts sophomore from Manchester, is the new Vice President defeating Lyndell Weak from Paris.

BECKER EXPRESSED appreciation to the voters and especially those students who aided his campaign. He also noted the challenge to improve student, faculty, and public relations.

"As you may know, our school is the fastest growing school in the state, and a job in the Student Government is becoming a complex one. I am looking forward to serving you, the students, in hopes that we can continue to have the best school in this state.

"I WILL maintain regular office hours during the coming year, and I encourage each of you to bring your ideas and a willingness to work to the Student Government offices," newly elected Vice President Steve Becker said.

BILL ROSSON from Huntington carried the Secretary of Communications race by defeating Jackson coed Marcia Hanna.

Rosson also expressed appreciation to his supporters and said:

Close voting dominated each race in yesterday's Student Government elections. Over 1380 students marked their ballots and chose five candidates out of a field of ten to govern them for the coming year.

BILLY CUNNINGHAM, a junior in Agriculture from Memphis, defeated Mike Foster in the presidential poll.

"Being a Student Government officer is a great honor, but it also involves tremendous responsibilities," stated Cunningham.

"As President, I represent each and every student. For me to represent you effectively, I must know you and be able to obtain your opinions on matters concerning you, the student body.

"The closer the Student Government-student body relationship, the more effective the student voice will be in school affairs. I would like to take this opportunity to encourage each student to become acquainted with myself and each Student Government officer.

"With a decided effort from each student, your faith in the newly elected Student Government will be duly rewarded in the coming year," new SG President Cunningham stated.

NELL MOODY

"THE OFFICE IN which I enter is an important one. I pledge to do my best to improve communications between Student Government and the individual student. My office will always be open for students to come by and place a complaint or just to talk.

"I feel that you as students should become involved in Student Government. It is a means whereby you can give of yourself for the betterment of UTM," stated the new Secretary of Communications, Bill Rosson.

NELL MOODY, a junior from Memphis will take office next fall as the new Secretary of Finance, after defeating another Memphis coed, Carole Hunter, for the post.

"It is an honor to be elected Secretary of Finance of the Student Government," Miss Moody stated, "and I am looking forward to working with the other officers to make the Student Government successful next year."

"Special thanks go to everyone who has helped in my campaign," incoming Secretary of Finance Moody stated.

NELDA KENNEDY overcame Kathy Prince to win the Secretary of Affairs race. Miss Kennedy stated that:

"Because of your enthusiastic support for me, I am convinced of the concern you, the students, have for the welfare of our university. Your confidence in me plus my dedication and enthusiasm will serve to make 1969-70 one of the best years the Student Government has ever offered students."

"I PROMISED you during my campaign that my office door would be open to you at any time. Feel free to allow me to serve you at your convenience.

"Considering these things and realizing the responsibilities of this office, I am proud to serve you as Secretary of Affairs for the coming year," victorious Neida Kennedy said.

Senator Gore Slates Visit

Senator Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) will be at the University Center from 9 to 12 noon Saturday, Chancellor Dykes announced Monday.

'Appreciate UTM Week' Heralded As Success

Last Friday marked the completion of a unique experiment in UTM history. The Student Government Association ended its first week-long tribute to the university known as "Appreciate UTM Week."

In this all-out effort by students, faculty, and administrators to exhibit the assets of this institution, not only to the students and faculty but to the surrounding communities, student-administrative cooperation and genuine school spirit soared, perhaps, to an all time high. This achievement alone is highly significant in an age when hypocrisy, narrow-mindedness, and dissent tend to broaden the generation gap making meaningful communication difficult if not impossible.

The overall tone of the week was one of optimism as leaders from all over the state came and spoke highly of the achievements and rapid growth experienced here. Among those expressing hearty approval was UT President Andrew Holt.

As each day passed, a different group was specifically recognized for its contributions to various segments of campus life. Monday saw recognition given to athletes, Tuesday spotlighted the faculty, Wednesday recognized Seniors, Thursday was set aside as Organizations Day including the Honors Day ceremonies, and Friday was designated as Underclassmen Day.

Displays throughout the University Center, representative of various clubs and organizations, further enhanced the week's theme by exhibiting much of what this campus has to appreciate.

The week ended on a constructive note as visiting high school students were conducted by student guides over the campus to familiarize them with the possibilities of their potential university.

As the festivities ended and the displays were cleared away, an initial experiment was heralded as a primary success by all who had come to see. Once again initiative and enthusiasm triumphed and quite possibly traced a path of tradition.

Parade Of Opinion

April 22, 1969

To the Students of UTM:

Last week, one of the finest programs ever held at The University of Tennessee at Martin was conducted on our campus.

APPRECIATE UTM WEEK, initiated and sponsored by students, represented the highest honor that could be accorded our campus, and I want to use this means to express our deep appreciation and gratitude to all members of the student body for wishing to recognize their University in this fashion.

AT A TIME when so many college and university campuses are characterized by strife and student unrest, last week's program has special significance as a measure of the excellent relationships which exist between students, faculty, and administration on the UTM campus. It is these relationships which give our campus its distinctive flavor and set us apart from other colleges and universities.

These are critical times in higher education, both in our state and throughout the nation. Indeed, many observers warn that long-cherished values and traditions of American higher education, including that most cherished value of all—academic freedom, may be lost as a consequence of the growing attacks, from within and without, on our colleges and universities.

IN TIMES LIKE these, it is essential that the academic "community" become a community again; that the various elements of the college and university campus work together cooperatively in the great experience of learning; that the students, faculty, and administration remember that ultimately they seek the same goal—relevant and meaningful education for all students; and, finally, that it be recognized that alterations and change in the academic world must come through a rational, orderly process that utilizes the intelligence and good judgment of students, faculty, and administration alike.

Above all, we must remember that in an institution which holds as one of its highest values reasoned and intelligent discussion of problems and issues, there can be no place for intimidation, coercion, or violence such as that now occurring on many campuses throughout the nation.

FOR THESE REASONS, the program of the week past has implications that transcend our own campus, that extend to any campus where students, faculty, and administration earnestly and seriously seek the advancement of their university and the improvement of the educational experience.

In these times, events such as APPRECIATE UTM WEEK reaffirm the viability of our academic institutions and their capacity to exist as communities of thinking, caring men and women. We thank all those responsible for last week's program, and we are deeply grateful for the sentiments which motivated our students to honor their campus in this fashion.

Sincerely,
Archle R. Dykes
Chancellor

April 21, 1969

Dear Chancellor Dykes:

May I first thank you for the very kind invitation to attend your very fine Appreciation Week.

MAY I SAY that in my twenty-two years of broadcasting, much of which has been spent in covering news and other events, that your APPRECIATE UTM WEEK was about the most unique event ever covered. I have never seen a college campus so united. It certainly makes one feel good again.

I congratulate you, your faculty, and the student body for providing us with such a wonderful experience.

Kindest regards,
Gerry Quick
General Manager
WBBJ, Jackson

Disciplinary Committee Meets With Success

Within the university judiciary system, there are four courts available to the student including the newly created Student-Faculty Disciplinary Committee which has met with measurable success according to Dean of Students H. B. Smith.

THIS COURT, WHICH WAS set up last September by provision of the Student Government Constitution, is composed of nine faculty members and twelve students who serve for one year on a rotating basis. Faculty members are elected by the faculty and the students by Student Government at the beginning of each year. Three representatives from both these groups are present to hear every case.

As a matter of general procedure, each case is introduced by the acting chairman who calls on the recording secretary to read the charge and then list the student's rights. Throughout the procedure, the testimony of the defendant and any witnesses is taken down by the secretary in addition to being recorded on tape.

AFTER THE CASE has been heard and thoroughly discussed, the committee is recessed for consideration of a verdict, and if necessary, punitive measures are prescribed. If found guilty, the student is informed of his right to appeal the decision to the Administrative Council which is composed of department heads and administrators.

"The purpose of the court is not punitive, but is corrective," Dean Smith noted. "We are not having criminal cases here. We are an educational system dealing with educational problems. We want to handle the situation as an educational action trying to educate. We want you to gain something from the experience," he continued.

IN ADDITION TO the Student-Faculty Disciplinary Committee which meets as the need arises, there is also the Dormitory Council, which handles situations in each dorm, and the Student Court, an organ of Student Government designed to handle cases that arise on campus. Student Court cases may be appealed to the Student-Faculty Disciplinary Committee, from there to the Administrative Council, and ultimately to Chancellor Dykes if the student feels the need.

Letter Describes Dream Dormitory

by Patti Field

The following letter might be an example of what a freshman may write home concerning her first taste of UTM dorm life in the year 1979.

Dear Mom and Dad,

You really would enjoy staying in the dorm. It is so clean and modern; let me describe it to you.

EACH ROOM IS a different color with corresponding wall-to-wall carpets. The lighting and temperature have controls by which we can regulate how much of each we want. There are huge windows with a beautiful view.

My room has some unique devices in it. Behind the medicine cabinet door is an ingeniously concealed TV. And there is a phone in the corner of each room.

WE HAVE A portable refrigerator and stove. This is next to the large closet space. A few steps away is my revolving, comfortably-cushioned desk chair. From it you can see the bathtub.

The room has piped-in music. My wall has a small opening that runs directly to the food center in the basement. I can deposit a quarter and in a few minutes, a sandwich and cold drink will appear.

THERE IS ALSO a laundry shoot which saves me the trouble of taking the heavy load to the basement.

These are just a few of the new dorm delights which are making my stay here at UTM a real dream.

Much love,
Ginny

Critics Corner

by Bob Stack

"I found tonight's audience most receptive, more-so than a lot of colleges and universities we have played," stated Anthony Gourdine, of Anthony and the Imperials, as the lead singer tried to regain his composure over a Coke.

"YOU KNOW, I lose six or eight pounds when I do a concert. I really put myself into a show. I just can't see half-doing something that means so much to me."

The Anthony and the Imperials Concert contains a message...the message of, "love among your fellow man," to quote the lead singer. "Not a racist or a power movement, but an effort of all individuals to understand the needs of our society."

Their music is "sophisticated soul," and what Anthony calls "the only genuine American form of musical expression. Everything else can be traced to a foreign source."

The group was organized 14 years ago in a New York high school.

"Everyone had a group so we formed ours. I often wonder what happened to all the others; but, then, we broke up for two years, because we were exhausted."

"But we have a message," the popular vocalist continued "and entertaining is what we like the best. This is the original group."

The show is well organized and entertaining, and the type of show which demands audience participation.

"We get paid to sing our songs and do our show; however, we get our satisfaction when we know the audience enjoys the show," Little Anthony said.

True, Anthony and the Imperials sang their songs, picked up their check, and left; but, they also left their unique impression which is what they came to do.

The Lettermen Will Appear

Characature

by Nancy Sanders

Marcia Hanna, one of the most cheerful girls on campus, is also one of the most active.

THE VIVACIOUS brunette is a member of Chi Omega sorority, Panhellenic representative, cheerleader, ROTC sponsor, secretary of hersophomore class, a Campus Leader, and a vice-president of SNEA.

"Of all my activities, I enjoy cheerleading best. It makes me feel like part of the school. But it also takes up more time than anything else," Marcia said.

MARCIA IS enthusiastic about school spirit.

"For a school our size, I think we have a lot of spirit. I think it is due to individual interest on campus. Everyone should be commended on the way they support the athletes," she complimented.

SUMMER IS THE only time she has off for hobbies, and she makes the most of her favorites—water skiing, swimming, reading, and sewing.

"Math is the only course I'm interested in," the math major said. "The others involve memorization, and I don't memorize too well," she admitted.
